Skills to work on with your child:

Etiquette

Preschool is often the first brush with the so-called real world for kids... and it shouldn't be the first time that kids have to take turns or share.

Basic etiquette is an important preschool lesson – and an even more important home lesson. Who wants the impolite kid? "Skills like waiting patiently, using a quiet voice, asking politely, being helpful, being gentle, saying please and thank you, etc., are all lessons that should be reinforced constantly at home. They are vital to a functional environment.

Remember Playhouse's Holiday Policy:

We do not celebrate holidays therefore if you bring Valentines in the month of February I will have to send them back home with your child. ☺
